The Greener Nov 17 2021 My name is Jason Green, and I guess that I'm kind of a goofball. At least I was, until one of my pranks went wrong and I ended up having to get a job at the Whispering Canyon Country Club. That was when everything changed. After I became friends with Eugene, who absolutely loves golf, I started to play the game myself. To my surprise, I was actually pretty good at it! I'd never been good at anything besides making people laugh. Now I'm starting to think maybe the cool kids aren't so cool after all. Maybe I'm not just the fat kid who makes people laugh for a laugh, maybe I'm a golfer. This smart, popular kid from New Orleans had just made the varsity football team as a freshman lineman. But everything changed when Hurricane Katrina struck his hometown. "T-Lloyd" and his family were devastated to find that their home was flooded and most of their possessions were ruined. They would have to pick up the pieces and start over. So, with heavy hearts, they moved to a small town in Texas. Things were tough at first, but T-Lloyd bounced back, especially on the football field. It's not easy playing "in the trenches" (meaning the rough-and-tumble line of scrimmage). But T-Lloyd's heart, determination, and amazing physical strength have made him a Texas high school football star. Book jacket.

Safe at Home Oct 17 2021 My name is Selena Garcia and Ive been playing baseball since I was a little girl. Theres a beat-up field behind our apartment where we play on every day. Being the only girl out there can be rough. Thats why I finally listened to my mothers advice and joined a girls softball league. I love playing softball and my life really started to come together. I made some friends and even discovered that I have a talent for pitching. But the day I made my first appearance on the pitchers mound, tragedy struck my family. Now I feel lost wondering: will life ever be the same again? Full Speed Ahead Mar 02 2023 In life, a few special people find the courage to remain positive despite impossibly challenging circumstances. The rest of us are left in awe and, ultimately, turn to them for strength and inspiration. Bryson McLeod has been confined to a wheelchair for most of his life. Still, the teen from New Jersey is always smiling as he moves full speed ahead on his road to success. The former child model is an elite athlete who excels in several sports, including wheelchair basketball, track and sled hockey. (Hes a champion ping pong player, too!) Like Bryson, the best of the best wheelchair athletes don't let their fate in life get the best of them. Rather, they set their sights on conquering the world, which they get to do every four years at the Paralympic Games, the ultimate goal. So meet the extraordinary Bryson McLeod as he races toward the Paralympics. Catch him if you can! When I get mad, everything gets hazy, and el fuego, the fire, takes over. Once the fire's lit, there's nothing I can do to put it out. So I get into fights all the time at school. Everyone with an opinion wants to help me, but I don't want their help. My parents are making me see some psychologist, and she recommended that I use a punching bag. She actually wants me to hit something when I get angry! I know it's better than hitting the side of someone's face. Here I am, at some dirty gym in Philadelphia. I'm learning how to box so my father won't send me to a military school. The head trainer, Coach Castillo, is tough, and he seems to have it out for me. Some people heal in a hospital, some heal at home-my healing starts here in this gym, fighting el fuego. Book jacket.

I'm from Texas, but my father is a colonel in the Air Force, so we move around a lot. We've been living in Germany for the last six years. I had just made the starting lineup on my school team when "The Colonel" dropped a bomb on me: we were moving to Florida. Once we got there, I found out that skateboarding was king. The sport is the complete opposite of everything I'd been taught-and everything I believed. I'm definitely an outsider in this town, where "locals rule." Before long, though, I learned to skate, and I soon realized that the sport is an extension of me. I love the thrill of pulling off a difficult trick and flying through the air. The Colonel would hate it if he found out I was skating, or that my best friend has started drinking. I've got some tough decisions to make-but will I ever be thought of as a local? Book jacket.
